Brick Packaging to Represent Tonnellerie Radoux in the Midwest and East Coast

Santa Rosa, California (February 1, 2011) – Martin McCarthy, Sales Manager of Tonnellerie Radoux USA Inc., is pleased to announce that effective February 1, 2011 Dan Brick of Brick Packaging, who has been representing Tonnellerie Radoux barrels, tanks and Pronektar alternative products for oenology for the last six years in the Upper Midwest, will expand his territory to include the entire Midwest and the East Coast.

With a long career in corrugated packaging behind him, Dan Brick began selling natural corks to local wineries in the Grand Traverse Bay Area of Northwestern Lower Michigan. In speaking with his cork customers, Dan soon realized that there was a need for the coordination of glass selection and product delivery to the area, and Brick Packaging was born. Working in close partnership with his customers to meet their packaging and winemaking needs Dan continued to add to his customer base and Brick Packaging quickly grew into a distribution company offering a variety of quality products from around the world.

About Tonnellerie Radoux

With its American subsidiary Tonnellerie Radoux USA (www.radouxcooperage.com), Tonnellerie Radoux (www.radoux.fr) is one of the World's leading cooperages, manufacturing the finest French oak barrels, tanks, puncheons, casks, chips and insertable staves. The company also makes high-quality oak barrels from Eastern European forests as well as the United States from the three regions renowned for their white oak: Minnesota, Missouri and Appalachia. Established in 1947, Tonnellerie Radoux is certified by ISO 9001:2008 standards, and is recognized by the quality-assurance agency Bureau Veritas. The cooperage was recently awarded the 2010 Vinitech Gold Trophy for Innovation for its OakScan system of tannin measurement.
